Dear [first name, last name],

We are writing to let you know about your next steps after your hysterectomy. Please see below for more information.

- You do not need any more human papillomavirus (HPV) tests because no abnormal cell changes were found in your cervix during your hysterectomy. You do not need to do anything else at this time.
- Talk to your doctor, nurse practitioner or nurse about having a final human papillomavirus (HPV) test (also called a vaginal vault test). You are being asked to get a vaginal vault test based on your medical history or because abnormal cell changes were found in your cervix during your hysterectomy.

We have also told your doctor, nurse practitioner or nurse about your next steps.

Feel free to contact our office if you have any questions.
